"Elimination of Racial Discrimination Week"

INDIGENOUS PROTESTS AND THE COURTS

PRESENTED BY

CARA FAITH ZWIBEL

This workshop will provide a brief overview of how the right to protest is protected in Canada, a discussion of some limits on the right to protest and tools used to limit protests (by-laws, statutes, injunctions) and finally, concerns about ways in which Indigenous protests rights are limited/suppressed.

CARA FAITH ZWIBEL (she/her) is the Director of Fundamental Freedoms Program at the Canadian Civil Liberties Association (CCLA). Cara holds a political science degree from McGill, as well as law degrees from Osgoode Hall (L.L.B) and NYU (L.L.M). Her work with CCLA involves providing legal opinions and research and representing CCLA before the courts.
